Politics 190D: Early Socialist and Anarchist Thought
Summer Session I, 2016
University of California, Santa Cruz
Social Sciences 2, Room 171 (Tues/Thurs 1:00-4:30 pm)
Andrew J. Wood, Instructor
Office Hours Tues/Thurs 11:30-12:30, Merrill 137
anjwood@ucsc.edu

Course Description and Goals
The overall goal of this course in political theory is to present and engage students with the diverse perspectives, theories, and ideological sympathies broadly identified as socialist and anarchist. Though spanning in time from the 18th-20th centuries the overwhelming focus of this course is in the 19th century, chosen both for the relevance of Marx’s influence and interactions with his contemporaries, the activity of the Workers’ International, and the enduring influence on political thought now of the events and thought of the so-called ‘century of revolutions.’ Students should exit the class with a well-rounded understanding of major currents in the canons of socialism and anarchism, as well as access to vast secondary literatures (preparing them for engagement with current trends in theory as well).

Guiding Questions
1. What are the variety of theories, tactics, and political sympathies of what are often lumped together as socialism and/or anarchism? How heterogeneous are these perspectives?
2. Are these traditions of the left best understood as ideologies or as critiques of ideologies?
3. What are the ways in which leftist writings of the 18th and 19th century continue to influence politics and theory into the present?
4. How are violence and non-violence presented and thought through in radical leftist thought?
5. How did events of the 19th century shape the political thought of the time?
6. In what ways are ‘canonical’ socialist and anarchist thought enduringly relevant or not?
7. How are issues of identity tied to anti-capitalism in socialist and anarchist thought?
8. What are the connections between a predominant economic form and the expressions of free identity?
9. What are the continuities or discontinuities between individualism and collectivism?
10. What is the role of the state (if any) in radical social change, and why might this have been so hotly debated in the 19th/early 20th century?

Grading & Best Practices
Grades for this course will be determined through these factors:

Annotated bibliography (10%)
Two Response Papers (20%)
Final 10-15 page paper (50%)
Class participation (20%)
Grading guidelines for the papers and for class participation will be posted on ecommons. Included in the class participation grade will be active engagement in our class meetings. This includes respectful and thoughtful debate, raising questions related to the material, and/or attending office hours. You must come to class caught up on your reading. Proper preparation is a necessity for high quality discussions, as well as for high quality grades. In addition, you must also come prepared with a short, 1-page response to the readings, on two weeks of your own choosing. On the weeks indicated, you will bring outlines, introductions, and partial drafts of your final paper in lieu of these discussion papers. In other words, we will be working on the final paper throughout the quarter, but you should never have two written assignments due on the same day, unless by choice. These response papers should be typed and placed on the front desk prior to the beginning of each that chosen class meeting. Class discussion should address these responses and other questions surrounding the readings and lectures.

Summer Session Students with Disabilities

If you qualify for classroom accommodations because of a disability, please submit your Accommodation Authorization Letter from the Disability Resource Center (DRC) to me as soon as possible, preferably within the first week of the Summer Session. Contact DRC by phone at 831-459-2089 or by email at drc@ucsc.edu for more information.

Citation in Papers:

You may utilize either MLA or Chicago style citation formats. Please make sure that whichever format you decide to use, you use consistently and correctly. Failure to cite correctly constitutes plagiarism.

Academic Integrity & Unauthorized Sale of Course Notes:

Familiarize yourself with the University’s principles, policies, and procedures regarding breaches of academic integrity. These can be found on the “academic integrity” website at: http://www.ucsc.edu/academics/academic_integrity/undergraduate_students/. If you are unsure about anything that you read on this website, or what is acceptable or not acceptable in completing assignments for this course, please ask me. If you cheat, I will have no choice but to report you and impose the academic penalty of failure in the class. While I encourage you to collaborate with each other, including sharing notes if you choose to do so, you may not sell your notes to anyone whether another student or a company. Please see the message of the Interim Vice Provost and Dean of Undergraduate Education for more information: http://news.ucsc.edu/2010/11/course-notes-notehall.html

Assigned Texts

The reading schedule for this course is both rigorous and manageable. In addition to essays accessible on ecommons, the following texts are required for this course. I recommend purchase of the texts, which are available at the Bay Tree Bookstore, but they are also available on reserve at McHenry Library. Please note, the dates listed below are for these specific edition dates, not the original date of publication. Though I strongly recommend these editions for a variety of reasons, older editions (excluding the Morris text) of these books are certainly acceptable for our purposes. Prices indicated are for preferred editions.

Reading Schedule

Week 1: Socialism & Anarchism Before Marx.
What were leftist, liberal, and utopian thinkers imagining a post-capitalist/post-exchange economy would look like? How did earlier thinkers influence Marx and his contemporaries? What are the ways in which liberalism conceived of property, and how did this influence their opponents?

June 21: Fourier, Charles. Phalanx readings (selections on ecommons)

Rousseau, Jean-Jacques. The Social Contract (pp. 1-28 on ecommons)
Discourse on Inequality (pp. 23-37 on ecommons)
---Guest talk “On Liberalism & Anarchism”
*Recommended: Wilson, Peter Lanborn. Pirate Utopias.

Week 2: Stirner and Marx’s Critique

How does Stirner present the individual and how does Marx respond? What are the grounds upon which Marx critiques Stirner and other young Hegelians? How does Marx outline the materialist conception of history, and how radical of a shift in critique was this move? What is a materialist critique of ideology? What is the importance of class (and class struggle) in this conception of history?

June 30: Annotated Bibliography Due

* Marx, Karl. Economic and Philosophic Manuscripts of 1844. (selections on ecommons)
  German Ideology (selections on ecommons)

--Guest talk on “Black Radicalism, Illegality, and the Lumpen-proletariat Question”

*Recommended: Debs, Eugene V. (selections on ecommons)
  Thompson, E.P. The Making of the English Working Class.

Week 3: Bakunin & Kropotkin

What were the key differences in the anarchist conception of organization, political action, and tactics different from socialist ideals? How were they similar? What are the major tensions between Bakunin’s and Kropotkin’s conceptions of the role of the state and Marx’s? What are the potential advantages and disadvantages of mobilizing the state as an anti-capitalist institution? How does the concept of living well versus simple survival influence anarchist and socialist imaginaries of a post-capitalist world?

July 5: Outline/Introductory Page Due

* Bakunin Statism and Anarchy (entire, pp. 3-217), God and the State (entire, pp. 9-86).

* Aristotle, The Politics (Books 1, 3, and 7 on ecommons)

July 7: Kropotkin, Peter. The Conquest of Bread (entire, pp. 4-199), and Mutual Aid (selections on ecommons).

Michel, Louise. 1871 Writings (2 selections on ecommons)

*Recommended: Kropotkin, Memoirs of a Revolutionist
  Bookchin, Murray. Social Anarchism or Lifestyle Anarchism: An Unbridgeable Chasm

Week 4: Comparative Socialist Utopias
How does Romanticism come to be a major influence on leftist political thought towards the end of the 19th century? How does more traditional utopianism come to influence socialism in this century? What are the advantages and disadvantages of utilizing fiction as a site of radical theorizing? What were key distinctions in imagined post-capitalist futures as either industrial or agrarian?

July 12: Partial Draft Due
Bellamy, Edward. Looking Backward. (entire, pp. 35-234)

*Recommended: Wells, H.G. A Modern Utopia

Week 5: Gender and Feminism in Socialism and Anarchism
How are gender relations conceived of as an important site for class liberation? What are the connections, tensions, and inter-sectionality of identity markers such as race, class, and gender? What are the differences between socialist feminism and anarchist feminism in the early 20th century?

July 19: Early Feminist Socialists
Marx, Eleanor. (selections on ecommons)
Perkins Gilman, Charlotte. Herland (entire, pp. 1-143) & Women and Economics (selections on ecommons)
Kollantai, Alexandra. Make Way for Winged Eros (ecomics)

Davis, Angela. Women, Race, and Class.

July 21: Later Feminist Radicals
Parsons, Lucy. Selected essays & speeches (ecomics)

Luxenberk, Rosa. (selections on ecommons)

Final Paper due the final day of class.