Course Description: In the mid-nineteenth century, the imposition of American rule in Texas, California, New Mexico, and Arizona set in motion profound changes for the native Mexican populations including substantial property loss, political and economic subordination, and assaults on both cultural and religious practices. History 128 examines these transformations and the manner in which they shaped Mexican American communities, especially those in South Texas and southern California over time. Students will study various instances of racism, violence, and nativism perpetuated against Mexican-descent peoples; furthermore, students will examine how Mexicans responded to these confrontations. For the twentieth century, we emphasize the struggles of everyday men and women to achieve political, social, and civil rights equality for Mexican-descent peoples.

Satisfies American History and Institutions Requirement. (General Education Code(s): ER, E.)

Course Expectations and Participation: You can expect an intellectually provocative experience from this course. Lectures illuminate topics as well as provide an intellectual platform for students to critically engage. Class discussions in lecture will focus on student-generated questions. I expect that you fully engage each lecture. It is critical that you keep up with every aspect of this course on a daily basis.

Course Objectives:

1. Students will learn and apply the concepts of class, race/ethnicity, gender, and nationalism to understand social interaction and social change.
3. Students will learn about the formation and transformation of Chicano/a communities over time.
4. Students will learn about the changing regional dynamics of individual and group identity among Chicanos/as over time.
5. Students will learn about the origins and outcomes of various social movements as forces that fostered (e.g. Chicano/a movement) or constricted civil rights for Mexican-descent peoples (e.g. nativism).

Attendance: Your daily presence is critical to your success in the class; make sure to sign the daily attendance sheet even if you are late. Although I do not expect perfect attendance, I do expect near perfect attendance. In other words, you may be absent no more than once during the summer session—no explanation from you is necessary or desired. If you are absent more than one time, you will be in jeopardy of failing the class. My attendance policy as stated above derives from my interpretation of the University Statement on Undergraduate Education, Chapter 6. Student Program of Studies: “6.7.7: The instructor establishes the procedure or procedures which comprise the examination or body of course work required. (Am 4 June 69, 25 May 77) 6.7.8.” See senate.ucsc.edu/manual/santacruz-division-manual/

Participation During Class: Your consistent, verbal engagement is critical in achieving an intellectually provocative experience in this course. It is vital that you complete all readings on the syllabus in a timely manner and keep up with the pace of the course. If there are changes in the course syllabus, it is your responsibility to adhere to these shifts, however infrequent they may be. Attendance is mandatory and ungraded while participation in lectures is graded. (10%)

Weekly Quizzes: There will be three weekly quizzes that will measure how often and how thoroughly you are reading main texts and understanding and applying lecture content. You are to keep up every week with the readings, which are clearly outlined in the course syllabus. See syllabus for coverage/content dates. (3 @ 10%=30%)

Response Papers: Two response papers will measure your ability to write somewhat spontaneously and analytically on particular topics. Students will write a 2-3 page essay responding to an instructor-posed question the day of the assignment. However, you will receive parameters of the response paper question at least two days before the administration of the response paper. Lecture and readings will guide response-paper topics; likewise, appropriate material must be referenced in the response papers. In-class, open-book, open-note: Wednesday, July 5 is Response Paper One which will cover weeks 1-2; Wednesday, July 19 is Response Paper Two that will cover weeks 3-4. Both response-paper dates also appear on the syllabus. (2 @ 15% each=30%)

Final Paper: The final paper is your final examination. In week two, you will be given the parameters of this assignment. For now, the paper topic will address Chicana history, that is, the historical contributions of Mexican-origin women as they relate to particular themes addressed in this course: labor; immigration; and identity. Your paper must draw on primary source material as well as some secondary material and will be 8-10 pages in length. Please begin thinking about a topic today. Due last day class via email: Wednesday, July 26 at 5 PM (30%).

The grade distribution is as follows:

Lecture Participation	10%
Response Papers (2 @ 15% each)	30%
Weekly Reading Quizzes (3 @ 10% each)	30%
Final Exam	30%

All coursework must be completed to receive a letter grade

All coursework must be completed to receive a letter grade; final grades are based on a straight-grading scale (e.g. 95%>A; 94.9%-90.0%=A-). I do not round off grades.

No extensions will be given for any assignment.

Incomplete Grades, Make-Up Exams, Drop Dates, Academic Integrity, Laptops, Tablets, and Cell Phone Use: If it should be the case that you need an incomplete (“I”) grade for the course, you may be granted one only if you present the appropriate paperwork to me two weeks before the end of the term. The following is the official university policy on incomplete grades: “The grade of “I” may be assigned only when a student’s work is of passing quality but is incomplete. The student must make arrangements in advance with the instructor in charge of the course in order to receive an “I.” In order to replace the “I” with a passing grade and to receive credit, a student must petition by the deadline imposed by the Registrar and complete the work of the course by the end of the finals week of the next term, unless the instructor specifies an earlier date. If the instructor fails to submit a passing grade for any reason by the deadline for submitting grades in the next succeeding term after the “I” was awarded, the student receives an NP or F depending on the grading option selected. The deadline imposed herein shall not be extended. (However, see SCR 6.7.) (Am 22 Oct 69 EI, 26 May 71 EW, 25 May 77, 28 May 80, 29 May 96, effective 1 Sept 97, 23 Feb 00; CC 31 Aug 98; EC 31 Aug 09).” However, incomplete grades are highly discouraged. Likewise, if you should decide to add the course, you must do so by Wednesday, June 29, 2016. To drop, July 3.

Make-up exams response papers will be arranged only in extraordinary cases. You must also have a verifiable reason for missing the exam (note from doctor, religious leader...). In case of a missed examination, you must contact me no later than a week after the original exam, quiz, or response-paper date to discuss the nature of your situation. Otherwise, you may fail the assignment.

On Academic Integrity from the UCSC Division of Undergraduate Education: “All members of the UCSC community have an explicit responsibility to foster an environment of trust, honesty, fairness, respect, and responsibility. All members of the university community are expected to present as their original work only that which is truly their own.

All members of the community are expected to report observed instances of cheating, plagiarism, and other forms of academic dishonesty in order to ensure that the integrity of scholarship is valued and preserved at UCSC. In the event a student is found in violation of the UCSC Academic Integrity policy, he or she may face both academic sanctions imposed by the instructor of record and disciplinary sanctions imposed either by the provost of his or her college or the Academic Tribunal convened to hear the case. Violations of the Academic Integrity policy can result in dismissal from the university and a permanent notation on a student's transcript." I will not tolerate violations of academic integrity.

If you are using a laptop or tablet to take notes, please see me for approval. You may NOT connect to the internet while using a device in class.

In the same vein, cell phone use is not allowed during lecture and TA discussion sections. Each student will be warned once; thereafter, the student will be asked to leave the class for the day. If this problem persists beyond these two transgressions, the student will be excused from the class and will not return until after they meet with the Dean of Undergraduate Education.

Students with Disabilities: UCSC provides a climate of equal opportunity to all of its programs, activities, and services, and is in full compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. Reasonable accommodations will be made based on recommendations from the Disability Resource Center. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation or have any questions about physical access, please speak to me immediately.
