COURSE DESCRIPTION
Anthropology in the present offers exciting opportunities to study worlds in the making as well as postcolonial responses to the anthropocene. This online course brings together the diverse forms of cultural knowledge and complexities of everyday life to illuminate longstanding concerns of sustainability and justice.

We will explore the imaginative and critical work of communities to achieve just sustainabilities through a coherent and thought provoking overview of social practices, politics, and moral principles in sustaining communities. The course will address approaches to: justice and equity in terms of recognition, process, procedure, and outcome; meeting the needs of both present and future generations (intra-generational and inter-generational equity); improving quality of life and well being; and, living within ecosystem limits. The course investigates multiple theories of sustainable development, and the tools and techniques and in what contexts we can move towards the ecological integrity, economic security, empowerment, responsibility and social wellbeing characteristic of sustainable communities. Case studies are drawn from around the world utilizing examples from Right Livelihood Award Laureates (the prestigious Alternative Nobel Prize), Right Livelihood College faculty and researchers, and their communities.

COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES
Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:
- Develop theoretical frameworks for understanding how social and environmental injustice is produced locally, regionally, and globally and how social justice is linked to sustainability.
- Ground students in the realities faced by indigenous and impoverished communities locally and to connect these to struggles in other parts of the world.
- Explore strategies for addressing cultural knowledge and practices of sustainability from the community, government, science, and legal perspectives.
- Inspire and meaningfully engage students in local, regional, and cultural efforts to promote social justice and sustainability.

COURSE WORKLOAD
A typical 5 unit course is expected to require 120 to 150 hours of your time per quarter. This averages out to 12-15 hours per week. Because this is an online course, without regular in person class sessions, it is recommended that you block out regular times each week in your schedule to complete the assignments.

ASSIGNMENTS
EVALUATION AND GRADES WILL BE BASED ON:
- 10% - Completion of Online Materials and Quizzes. There are 10 sections in the course, each containing multiple videos and materials, and a quiz to be completed at the end of the section. Please complete these by the due date. If a student does not complete 2 quizzes, they will go down a full letter grade.
  • Note: Reading the faculty and laureate biography websites are optional, and there are no quiz questions from them. These are the links that appear above the interview videos in Canvas.

- 20% - Reading and Film Response Papers. Students are invited to write response papers for each section. These will be given as homework at the end of each section and turned in electronically. There are 10 in total. Response papers should be 450-550 words, 12 point Times font, double spaced to receive full credit of 2 % points each (20 % points total).
- 10% - Participation in a Right Livelihood Webinar (Was formerly ‘World Cafe Conversation’). There will be two real-time conversations throughout the quarter with a Right Livelihood Laureate, Right Livelihood College affiliate, or faculty member. One will be online and one will be in person at UC Santa Cruz - see Canvas for details. You are required to attend one of the two conversations, though attending both is encouraged. We will utilize an innovative process called The World Cafe which allows our large group to not only hear a lecture, but also break into small groups for conversation. These breakouts are a great way to meet other students in the course, and provide an opportunity for dialogue and critical reflection on the course themes.
- 10% - Nomination Proposals. Each student will create nomination proposals for people or organizations that they feel are deserving of a Right Livelihood Award. This project allows students to showcase the work that is happening at their own campus, community, and/or the social movements they care about. Each student is expected to create a minimum of 4 entries for 2.5 % points each (10 % points total).
- 25% - Midterm Exam.
- 25% - Final Exam.

LATE WORK POLICY
Assignments are due on the date given in Canvas. Late response papers and nomination proposals are accepted for partial credit up to 24 hours after the due date. After that point response papers and nomination proposals without prior approval will not receive credit. They may not be graded as promptly as those turned in on time.
