Course description

In this course we examine “development” as both a transformative material process and as an ideological and geopolitical project linked to histories of colonialism and Western ideas of “modernization” and “progress”. We explore how development has simultaneously improved the wellbeing of much of humankind while contributing fundamentally to today’s global crises of environmental sustainability and socioeconomic and racial inequality. The first part of the course surveys diverse perspectives on what it means to be “developed” and on related metrics such as affluence and poverty, and critically examines the relationships between places and cultures categorized as “developed” and “underdeveloped” (i.e. the Global North/First World and Global South/Third World). The second part of the course explores contemporary development dynamics and sustainability challenges, examining who organizes and directs such processes, how costs and benefits are distributed, and what forms of social resistance and change result. Throughout the course, we consider alternative strategies for development that explicitly address issues of sustainability and justice.

Learning objectives

• Introduce key concepts, theories, and metrics related to development, wellbeing, and sustainability.
• Foster understanding of complex systems and geographies through analysis of specific development processes and global-local connections.
• Promote engagement with the social and environmental justice dimensions of specific development processes and sustainability strategies.
• Cultivate critical reading and analytical skills and effective oral and written communication.
Course materials

All course materials will be available on Canvas and through McHenry Library.

Evaluation (subject to change)

Your course grade will consist of the following:

- Attendance, participation, and reading notes (30 points)
- Research and reflection assignments (35 points)
- Research project (35 points)
  - Research topic overview with outline and preliminary bibliography (10 points)—due beginning of week 4
  - Draft paper and peer review (10 points)—due beginning of week 5
  - Class presentation (5 points)—due during week 5
  - Final paper (10 points)—due end of week 5

Course Components (subject to change)

- Attendance, participation, and reading notes (30%):
  - Attendance: On Tuesdays and Thursdays we will use Zoom to meet synchronously between 1:00 pm and 4:30 pm. We will not always meet in our full group for this entire time, but you should plan to be occupied with class during this time frame throughout the session. Attendance in these synchronous meetings is required; please let me know about absences beforehand or as soon as possible afterwards. Absences will affect your grade.
  - Participation: This course will blend lecture, full-class discussions, and work in small group settings. In order to facilitate engagement and a sense of community, you are expected to use your camera and microphone (muted except when speaking) during all of the class sessions.
  - Reading Notes: Many of our lectures and discussions will be linked to readings and you should only take this class if you will be able to complete the required readings before class and can come prepared to discuss them. You are required to prepare short “reading notes” for each class that include a thoughtful reflection on at least 1 main point and pose one critical question for each reading. This will demonstrate that you have done the reading and will facilitate our discussions. Reading notes should be posted to our class’s online canvas page, under the “Discussions” section, by midnight on Mondays and Wednesdays.
• Research and reflection assignments (35 points total):

On Canvas, within the modules for different class meetings, you will encounter a variety of research and reflection assignments to facilitate your engagement with key concepts and to introduce you to specific resources and research tools. These assignments are required and should be completed by the deadline stated in Canvas, unless other arrangements have been made with the professor.

• Research project (35 points total):

You will undertake a research project on a topic of your choosing related to a positive intervention (for example a new policy or law, a technological innovation, a social mobilization, or some other kind of tangible progress) being made by society to address a specific challenge to sustainability. While the options here are broad in an effort to allow you to explore a topic of personal interest or inspiration, you will need to focus on something for which there is ample supporting material from a selection of reputable sources. The project consists of the following graded components:

- Research topic overview with outline and preliminary bibliography (10 points)—due beginning of week 4
- Draft paper and peer review (10 points)—due beginning of week 5
- Class presentation (5 points)—due during week 5
- Final 5-6 page paper (10 points)—due end of week 5

Guidelines for lecture and discussion

We are committed to promoting a just, inclusive, and caring community in this class

- Freedom of thought, opinion, and speech are fundamental to our learning environment—and to a democratic society.
- We may disagree but our discussions should always be respectful.
- Critique ideas, not people; and be kind.
- Please take an active role in class discussions by offering your perspectives and listening carefully.
- Please do not interrupt one another and avoid monopolizing the discussion.

Much of the material we cover in this course touches on issues of inequality, injustice, and historical violence that may be difficult for some. Should you ever feel concerned about or uncomfortable with the nature of the discussions or the dynamics experienced during our time together, please raise your concerns with the class or with me directly so that we may address the issue as quickly and effectively as possible.

Your feedback is encouraged and appreciated at any time during the course.
Principles of Community, Academic Integrity, and the Student Honor Code:

The University has established codes concerning proper academic conduct, honesty, and the consequences resulting from improper behavior. Please be aware of these policies and codes, which can be found at the following web locations: Principles of Community (http://www.ucsc.edu/about/principles-community.html); Academic Misconduct (https://www.ue.ucsc.edu/academic_misconduct); Student Handbook and Policies (http://deanofstudents.ucsc.edu/student-conduct/student-handbook/index.html).

Unfortunately, students sometimes commit plagiarism accidentally (i.e. by reusing portions of a paper that you wrote for another class or by failing to use quotation marks correctly). It is your responsibility to familiarize yourself with the rules of plagiarism and of correct citation. Please go to http://www.plagiarism.org/ and refresh yourself on how to paraphrase and cite the work of others.

Important Summer Session Deadlines, Policies, and Resources

Deadlines:

- Add - Thursday, July 28
- Drop - Monday, August 1 (tuition reversed)
- Request "W" Grade - Sunday, August 14 (no tuition reversal)

For all dates and deadlines, including 'change of grade option' (P/NP) and grades due, here is the summer academic calendar: https://summer.ucsc.edu/studentlife/index.html

For questions about dropping, requesting a W grade for a course, or withdrawing from the summer quarter, email summer@ucsc.edu.
DRC Remote Accommodations:

UC Santa Cruz is committed to creating an academic environment that supports its diverse student body. If you are a student with a disability who requires accommodations to achieve equal access in this course, please submit your Accommodation Authorization Letter from the Disability Resource Center (DRC) to me privately during my office hours or by appointment, preferably within the first two weeks of the quarter. At this time, I would also like us to discuss ways we can ensure your full participation in the course. I encourage all students who may benefit from learning more about DRC services to contact the DRC by phone at 831-459-2089 or by email at drc@ucsc.edu.

Small Group Tutoring:

Small Group Tutoring (SGT) supports students academically to advance educational equity by designing inclusive learning environments outside of the classroom. In SGT, you can expect the Tutor to facilitate cooperative group activities designed to have students work together on the course content and develop study skills for the course. SGT is offered at least three times each week for the entire quarter. The Tutor is an undergraduate student who took the class, did well, and is trained to facilitate group sessions to focus on students' needs to succeed in the course. SGT is open to all students enrolled in the class and they must sign up on our online system: TutorTrac. When students sign up for SGT, they are committing to attend every week.
